Notable features:

The 1851 map does not show these houses; that of 1876 does. Between them and the rear of a building facing Baltimore Street (the site of present number 899) there was a space, possibly a rear garden. The cast iron lintels on numbers 5 and 7 resemble those in other parts of the area. Number 9 is a slightly older house, c. 1850. The later cornice on number 5 has been added to cover a cornice like number 7's and both appear to have lost store fronts.

Environmental context:

Number 5 is vacant. There are similarly scaled houses across-street with St. Peter's complex to south. Street trees are needed on this wide street and rehabilitation of all three first floors is badly needed.
